Label Text: A polychromed wooden upper end of a coffin lid. The owner wears the vulture headdress, a circlet, and a blue and yellow striped tripartite wig with lappets ending in a yellow band. Above her forehead is a winged scarab and she wears a broad collar. Below, her two-fisted hands are painted yellow, emerging from within the vestment. Between her hands is a column of text with the offering formula, surmounted by the recumbent form of Anubis holding his insignia. Coffin lids such as these date to the 22nd-25th Dynasties, and are common in and around the Faiyum area of Egypt.
